COURCORAN SCHOOL OF THE ARTS AND DESIGN

Interim Director  Kym Rice

The Corcoran School of the Arts and Design bridges the University’s academically robust programs in the arts with Corcoran’s creative and inspired scholarship. Part of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, the School functions as an incubator for artists and practitioners in arts-related fields, and serves to enrich students who are taking classes in other areas of the University. As such, it provides a platform for engagement that bridges creative expression and practical application with the breadth and depth of the larger liberal arts education.

COURSES

Explanation of Course Numbers

• Courses in the 1000s are primarily introductory undergraduate courses
• Those in the 2000s to 4000s are upper-division undergraduate courses that can also be taken for graduate credit with permission and additional work
• Those in the 6000s and 8000s are for master’s, doctoral, and professional-level students
• The 6000s are open to advanced undergraduate students with approval of the instructor and the dean or advising office

Some of the courses listed below may not correspond with a degree program. For example, ceramics is not a degree program, ceramics courses are part of the fine arts program. See the faculty advisor for guidance regarding courses.
