MASTER OF ARTS IN THE FIELD OF HISTORY

Students delve into history with GW's world-renowned scholars. The program’s proximity to some of the most important research repositories in the world—the National Archives, the Folger Shakespeare Library, the National Security Archive and the Smithsonian museums—makes GW an ideal place to examine a variety of fields, from Renaissance Europe to the Cold War, and from imperial and colonial studies to modern American political and social history. Because our programs are relatively small, students work closely with faculty and graduate with the knowledge, analytical tools and writing skills for a range of professions.

The MA program offers students the opportunity to focus on an area of their choice. Alternatively, students may opt to specialize in one of the departments concentrations: History and Public Policy; Imperial and Colonial Studies; and US Legal History. The program prepares students for PhD work and careers that range from teaching high school, working for the government or conducting research within the private sector.

ADMISSIONS

Admission deadlines:
- Fall - April 1 (February 1 for fellowship consideration)
- Spring - October 1

Standardized test scores:
The GRE general test is not required.

Prerequisite requirements:
A bachelor’s degree from an accredited college or university with a major in history, or with substantial history coursework of high academic quality.

Prior academic records:
Transcripts are required from all colleges and universities attended, whether or not credit was earned, the program was completed, or the credit appears as transfer credit on another transcript. Unofficial transcripts from all colleges and universities attended must be uploaded to your online application. Official transcripts are required only of applicants who are offered admission. If transcripts are in a language other than English, English language translations must be provided. The English translation alone should be uploaded into your application.

Statement of purpose:
In an essay of 250 - 500 words, state your purpose in undertaking graduate study in your chosen field. Include your academic objectives, research interests, career plans, and the GW faculty member(s) with whom you anticipate working. Also discuss your related qualifications, including collegiate, professional, and community activities, and any other substantial accomplishments not already mentioned on the application.

Additional requirements:
All applicants must submit a recent writing sample (research paper preferred) of 10 - 30 pages in length. Please see the suggestions on what to include in your writing sample (https://history.columbian.gwu.edu/graduate/).

International applicants only:
Please review International Applicant Information (https://columbian.gwu.edu/international-graduate-applicants/) carefully for details on required documents, earlier deadlines for applicants requiring an I-20 or DS-2019 from GW, and English language requirements.

For more information on the admission process, please visit the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences Frequently Asked Questions (http://columbian.gwu.edu/graduate/admissions/faqs/) page.

Supporting documents not submitted online should be mailed to:

For all students, remaining credits are selected in consultation with the advisor. Up to 9 credits in undergraduate courses may be taken for graduate credit. To receive graduate credit for an undergraduate course, the course must be taken at the 3000 level or above and the student must arrange with the instructor for extra work. Unless otherwise stated under one of the focus areas listed below, a maximum of 6 credits in approved courses may be taken outside of the Department of History. Students may take up to three courses (9 credits) as part of the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan area.

The imperial and colonial studies focus area emphasizes the comparative study of empires. HIST 6128 and HIST 6050, a 15-credit major regional field, and a 6 to 9 credit minor regional field are required. Up to 9 credits may be taken in related disciplines outside of the Department of History. Students should take HIST 6128 and HIST 6050 in the first semester they are offered, as they are taught only in alternate years.

Public policy

The public policy focus area emphasizes the study of history as it relates to the analysis and conduct of public policy. An internship completed in conjunction with HIST 6012 is required. One-third of the coursework for this focus area is taken outside the Department of History in a discipline relevant to the student’s policy interests.

U.S. legal history

The U.S. legal history focus area combines a major field in U.S. history with a focus in U.S. legal history. Students may take up to 9 credits in courses in legal history offered by the Law School.

* A field of focus is centered on a specific period, region, or theme. Students work with the MA advisor to decide the specifics of their field of focus.
