

MASTER OF ARTS IN THE FIELD OF COMMUNICATION MANAGEMENT

The master of arts in communication management, the only degree of its kind in the Washington, DC, metropolitan area, prepares students to plan, implement, monitor and revise communication messages and processes within and across organizations. Students graduate with in-demand skills and a competitive edge in the growing communication management field.

Coursework explores how people inform, influence, and persuade each other. The interdisciplinary program is designed to meet the needs of a diverse pool of students, with courses including intercultural negotiation, persuasion, principled political leadership, international business strategy and conflict management and negotiation. Thesis and non-thesis options are available.

The student's experience in the program is enhanced by GW's location in the heart of DC, which provides unique access to a wealth of government and media agencies, consulting firms, and other notable organizations.
