GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN ISLAMIC STUDIES

The graduate certificate, offered by the Department of Religion, focuses on the study of Islam in its classical and contemporary formations, with an emphasis on developing competence in classical Islamic intellectual traditions. The cross-disciplinary program allows students to study with a variety of faculty members who are knowledgeable about the classical formulations of Islam, and have on-the-ground experience in Muslim-majority countries and communities. Centrally located in Washington, D.C., the program offers students the opportunity to interact with U.S. government agencies, think tanks, non-governmental institutions, and the large Muslim community residing and working in the metro area. The program also offers “non-traditional students” such as working professionals, civil servants, and employees of international agencies the opportunity to tailor the program to their particular needs.
