MINOR IN LAW AND SOCIETY

The interdisciplinary minor in law and society offers an excellent opportunity to develop a comprehensive understanding of the place of law in society. The minor is suitable for students interested in law school and those who wish to understand legal reasoning, conduct legal research, pursue an internship in law or simply communicate what the law says and how it works. Electives include Business Law and Ethics, Media Law, and Sexuality and Law.

This is a selective minor, and students must apply through the department. Application requirements include a GPA of 3.3 and completion of at least 30 credits at GW.
