MINOR IN THEATRE

Immerse yourself in the art of theatre—its techniques, history, and criticism—with an emphasis on learning by doing at GW. Our award-winning faculty, our home in one of the busiest theater cities in the country, and our strong interdisciplinary approach will give you incredible opportunities to become an expert in the art of theatre. With courses in theatre design, acting, directing, theory, dramaturgy, history, and production, you'll understand both the theory and practice required to create theatre. Over the course of the program you'll discover yourself as an artist and creator through a range of outlets for artistic expression, both at and around GW. You can take part in six on-campus main stage theater productions each year and also join local professional ensembles. Many of our students enter and exit the program as actors, while others learn that they are more passionate in other aspects of the craft such as costuming, lighting or directing.

Visit the program website (https://corcoran.gwu.edu/theatre-undergraduate/) for additional information.
