AH 3114. Art of the Book in the Medieval Muslim World. 3 Credits.
This course serves as an introduction to the history of painting and book illumination in the Islamic world, beginning with the rise of Islam in the seventh century and ending with the seventeenth century. We rely both on written sources (historical, philosophical, poetic, and religious) and works of art and material culture (painting, book illustrations, and calligraphy) to better understand the unity and diversity of the Islamic world and its complex attitude toward images. Islam nurtured a unique artistic and aesthetic visual language that was fashioned, in part, by Muslims' exposure to and dialogue with other peoples and civilizations, including Christians, Jews, Zoroastrians, Buddhists, and others. The Muslims' encounter with the flow of Turkic nomads, the growing influence of the Persian language, the contested Arab hegemony, exchanges and relations between nomad and sedentary, and the ongoing conflicts with non-believers (Byzantines, Hindus, Shamanists) brought about an endless process of creativity that is constantly reflected in Islamic art. The format of the course is a combination of lectures and class discussions. Throughout the course we analyze specific case studies that offer us a more complete grasp of the history of Islamic painting and book culture. The course is designed to serve non-specialists. All reading materials, including original sources, are in English. (Same as AH 6214).

AH 3116. The Aztec Empire. 3 Credits.
The Aztecs (or Mexica) of Mexico created a large empire, and while frequently the focus is on warfare and human sacrifice, they produced some of the most naturalistic art and reflective poetry that have survived the Spanish Conquest. Using archaeology, art, and ethnohistoric documents, this course focuses the importance of power in Aztec society and how the normalization of violence created a form of social cohesion central to the state. Prerequisites: ANTH 1003. (Same as ANTH 3812).
