MASTER OF ARTS IN EDUCATION AND HUMAN DEVELOPMENT IN THE FIELD OF INTERDISCIPLINARY SECONDARY TRANSITION SERVICES

Offered online

The master of arts in education and human development in the field of interdisciplinary secondary transition services degree program prepares personnel to be a change agent in teaching, leadership and support roles. The master’s program prepares leaders to assist youth with disabilities and at-risk youth to make successful transitions through high school to post-secondary education, competitive-integrated employment, and full citizenship. The curriculum integrates the Council for Exception Children (CEC) Advanced Knowledge and Skills for Transition Specialists. This nationally recognized program provides critical knowledge and experience in the ever-emerging field of secondary transition based upon legislative requirements, research, and evidence-based practices. With a strong social justice focus, students are prepared to effectively lead quality transition programs and services for all youth with disabilities in various settings.

This program is designed to a) advance interdisciplinary interaction to encourage shared responsibility to advance positive post-school outcomes for youth, b) prepare the next generation of leading experts in the field, c) provide an evidence-based curriculum that is driven by the most up-to-date research to prepare scholarly practitioners, and d) bridge the gap in applied research and practice.

Specific admission requirements are shown on the Graduate Program Finder. (http://www.gwu.edu/all-graduate-programs)
