

MASTER OF ARTS IN EDUCATION AND HUMAN DEVELOPMENT IN THE FIELD OF EXPERIENTIAL EDUCATION AND JEWISH CULTURAL ARTS

The Graduate School of Education and Human Development, in concert with the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, offers an intensive, interdisciplinary, 13-month degree program combining Jewish cultural arts, experiential education, and Jewish education. Graduates are prepared for leadership in Jewish museums and arts institutions, community centers, college campus organizations, social justice organizations, and other innovative educational and cultural settings.

Partnering theory with practice, and the classroom with fieldwork, the EE/JCA curriculum enables students to become competent, creative, and reflective professionals. The program:

- Inspires students to develop exciting and relevant programming for a range of audiences,
- Offers a year-long series of internships at cultural arts and educational institutions, and
- Develops professional skills including budgeting, grant writing, workplace collaboration, and effective communication.
