Empower youth to lead a better future by earning your Graduate Certificate in Transition Special Education from the George Washington University (GW). You will gain the required knowledge, skills and competencies to assist youth and young adults with disabilities as they transition to postsecondary opportunities. In the special education transition certificate program, you will focus on social justice as you join a community of transition leaders from across the country, learning to design and implement transition programming to help ensure the success of youth as they transition to adult life.
