MASTER OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES IN THE FIELD OF LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS

Program Director: C. Burgat

To survive in Washington’s complex political environment, the legislative affairs professional must have a comprehensive understanding of how Congress operates, how decisions are made on Capitol Hill, how to influence those decisions, and how to accomplish specific objectives within the legislative process.

Developed in consultation with government relations experts and legislative specialists, this challenging program delivers the knowledge and skills you need to work more effectively in the national policymaking arena. Learn how Congress and the White House develop public policy and examine the workings of Congress from the perspective of both scholars and practitioners. The master's degree in legislative affairs offers an 11-course (33-credit-hour) program. Classes meet Monday through Thursday evenings on Capitol Hill at the Hall of the States. The degree can be completed in less than two years. The three-part curriculum covers the political process and policy analysis in such areas as political leaders and parties, Congressional committees, campaigns and elections, interest groups, public opinion, media and public affairs, national security, and foreign affairs, energy and environmental policy, presidential relations.

Visit the program website (http://gspm.gwu.edu/legislative-affairs/) for additional information.
