

MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH (MPH@GW), HEALTH INFORMATICS AND ANALYTICS CONCENTRATION

Program Director: G. Gray

The Health Informatics and Analytics concentration will prepare students with the values, knowledge, and skills to obtain, analyze, manage, and use health information to achieve optimal healthcare delivery and administration through sound clinical and business, operational, and strategic decisions. The concentration is a part of the MPH@GW program, which combines core MPH skills with an emphasis on interdisciplinary teaching and core competencies/skills by using cases/other materials from both the U.S. and abroad with a HIA concentration that contains courses and skills to set students up for what lies ahead in the use of data and information to improve health. The pedagogy allows students to tailor their education to local, national, or global levels emphasizing interdisciplinary public health competencies, including: biostatistics and epidemiology; cultural competency; health communication; leadership; professionalism; planning, implementation and evaluation methods; public health biology; and systems thinking.
