POLITICAL SCIENCE

The Department of Political Science at George Washington University offers students a unique opportunity to not only study politics and policy but to witness it in action. Whether interning on Capitol Hill, observing Supreme Court arguments, or meeting the nation’s top journalists, students are immersed in all that Washington, DC, has to offer.

With academic programs and research structured around six core strengths, the department covers a comprehensive range of political behavior and governance in the United States and across the globe. The department’s faculty are nationally published experts and mentors from diverse fields.

Through challenging courses and hands-on research, undergraduate and graduate students examine political problems from all angles and develop creative, policy-based solutions.

PSC 6370. Politics of China I. 3 Credits.
Readings and discussion of the political dynamics and policy process in contemporary China.

PSC 6371. Politics of China II. 3 Credits.
Research seminar on selected topics in Chinese politics, using official and other primary sources. Prerequisites: PSC 6370 or permission of the instructor.

PSC 6372. Foreign Policy of China. 3 Credits.
Readings and research on the main approaches to analyzing China’s foreign policy and foreign relations.

PSC 6373. Political Economy of Industrializing Asia. 3 Credits.
Comparative analysis of the relationship between economic interests and politics in East and Southeast Asia. Emphasis on industrializing economies and their integration into global trade and investment networks.

PSC 6374. Korean Politics. 3 Credits.
Readings and discussion of the political dynamics and policy process in contemporary China.

PSC 6375. States and Societies in East Asia. 3 Credits.
Exploration of comparative politics in East Asia, focusing on the interaction of state policies, political institutions, and social processes. Topics include authoritarianism, economic development, and democratization.

PSC 6377. Comparative Politics of the Middle East. 3 Credits.
Readings and research on selected problems of the governments and politics of the Middle East.

PSC 6378. Government and Politics of Africa. 3 Credits.
Major theories and themes of African politics considering the context shaping political and economic reforms, formal and informal institutions, and prospects for political reform.
PSC 6383. Comparative Politics of Latin America. 3 Credits.
Exploration of the democratic advances in Latin America in recent decades as well as the continuing severe social, economic, and political challenges to democracy.

PSC 6388. Topics in Comparative Politics. 3 Credits.
PSC 6390. Politics and Culture. 3 Credits.
Study of the intersection of culture and politics.

PSC 6439. International Political Economy. 3 Credits.
Research seminar exploring alternative theoretical approaches to the study of international political economy and their application to the explanation and interpretation of historical and contemporary events in world political and economic affairs. Primarily for Elliott School degree candidates.

PSC 6440. Theory in International Relations. 3 Credits.
Theories of international relations. Restricted to students in the Elliott School.

PSC 6442. Politics and Practice of International Institutions. 3 Credits.
The politics of international institutions in the areas of collective security, peace keeping, trade, money, development, environment, human rights.

PSC 6444. Politics of International Law. 3 Credits.
The political sources and consequences of international law and norms.

PSC 6456. Origins of Major Wars and Terrorism. 3 Credits.
An examination of the origins of major wars, including terrorism, from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries from the theoretical perspectives of realism, liberalism, and constructivism/identity.

PSC 6457. Arms Control and Disarmament. 3 Credits.
Major issues and trends in the postwar development of U.S. arms control and disarmament policy.

PSC 6465. The International Politics of Central and Eastern Europe. 3 Credits.
Major historical, political, social, and regional factors that have shaped the interwar, World War II, and postwar evolution of Eastern Europe; emphasis on foreign relations with outside powers and on regional East–West contacts.

PSC 6467. Asian Security. 3 Credits.
An examination of the major issues in Asian Security using various theoretical perspectives involving a mix of political science and policy analysis.

PSC 6475. International Politics of East Asia. 3 Credits.
Foreign policies and international behavior of the regional states (especially China, Japan, and Vietnam) and the extraregional powers (especially the U.S. and Russia).

PSC 6476. The Arab-Israeli Conflict. 3 Credits.
Readings and research on the origins, evolution, and issues of the Arab–Israeli conflict.

PSC 6478. International Relations of the Middle East. 3 Credits.
Readings and research on the regional and international relations of the Middle East.

PSC 6484. International Relations of Latin America. 3 Credits.
The trajectory of Latin America’s role in the world, with a particular focus on conflict and cooperation between Latin America and the United States.

PSC 6489. Topics in International Relations. 3 Credits.
PSC 6987. Legal Internship. 3 Credits.
Study of the interior workings of legal institutions and related organizations through an approved internship with a court, law firm, legal advocacy group, public defender’s office, or legal think tank. A research paper is required.

PSC 6996. Reading. 3 Credits.
Written permission of the instructor required prior to enrollment. Restricted to graduate degree candidates.

PSC 6997. Research. 3 Credits.
Written permission of the instructor required prior to enrollment. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 8101. Introduction to Empirical Political Analysis. 3 Credits.
Statistical foundations of empirical political analysis and computer applications. Basic probability theory, exploratory and descriptive data analysis, statistical inference, and introduction to linear regression.

PSC 8102. Empirical Political Analysis. 3 Credits.
Techniques of social science data analysis. Model building, estimation, and interpretation. Linear models and extensions. Introduction to discrete choice models. Prerequisite: PSC 8101 or permission of the instructor.

PSC 8103. Approaches to Policy Analysis. 3 Credits.
Primarily for doctoral students. Empirical and normative foundations of systematic policy analysis: concepts, theories, models, issues, strengths, limitations, and uses and misuses in the policy process.

PSC 8104. Qualitative Research Methods. 3 Credits.
Theoretical, practical, and ethical aspects of conducting qualitative research.

PSC 8105. Readings in Political Theory. 3 Credits.
Selected major works, both ancient and modern, that illuminate basic problems and questions of political theory.

PSC 8106. Topics in Political Theory. 3 Credits.
Advanced readings and group discussions. Analysis and interpretation of selected concepts and schools of thought.

PSC 8107. Modern Political Thought and Ideologies. 3 Credits.
Analysis of some main currents in modern political thought and ideologies.

PSC 8108. Craft of Political Inquiry. 3 Credits.
Logic of inquiry in political science: theories of knowledge, inference, and research methods.

PSC 8109. Dissertation Development Workshop. 3 Credits.
Design and development of dissertation research proposal for political science PhD Students.
PSC 8120. Nonlinear Models. 3 Credits.
Introduction to maximum likelihood estimation interpretation of non-linear statistical models. Statistical inference, appropriate use, and presentation and interpretation of results.

PSC 8121. Causal Inference. 3 Credits.
Tools used in the social sciences to infer causation, including classical experiments, natural experiments, instrumental variables, regression discontinuity, and panel designs. Restricted to students in the PhD in political science program. Prerequisite: PSC 8101.

PSC 8122. Logitudinal Analysis. 3 Credits.
Examination of two classes of statistical models for longitudinal data — (1) models for time-series, cross-sectional and panel data and (2) modeling event history (i.e., duration, survival, hazard).

PSC 8124. Multilevel Modeling. 3 Credits.
Statistical issues and models for multilevel (hierarchical) data structures, including the variance components, random intercept, and random coefficient models. Handling cross-level interactions.

PSC 8128. Surveys and Experiments. 3 Credits.
Design and analysis of sample surveys and experiments, including lab, survey, and field experiments. Restricted to students in the PhD in political science program. Prerequisite: PSC 8101.

PSC 8130. Game Theory I. 3 Credits.
Introduction to the core elements of game theory and how it has been utilized in political science. Applications of formal models to political phenomena and the major insights that have come from this work. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 8131. Game Theory II. 3 Credits.
Builds on the introductory material in Game Theory I to focus on examples of formal work in political science. Students expand their knowledge of advanced games and learn the principles behind exemplary published research. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 8132. Network Analysis. 3 Credits.
Sociological and psychological foundations of network theory; network measurement and inferential tools; applications of these tools and concepts to political science. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 815. Topics in Empirical and Formal Political Analysis. 3 Credits.
Selected topics in quantitative political methodology and formal political theory with varying emphasis on maximum likelihood estimation, nonlinear models, causal inference, formal theories, and mathematical/computational tools for the social sciences. May be repeated for credit provided the topic differs. Consult the Schedule of Classes for more details.

PSC 817. Selected Topics in Political Theory. 3 Credits.
In-depth coverage of significant issues in political theory, including such topics as justice, toleration, and political community. For advanced students.

PSC 820. American Political Process. 3 Credits.
A survey of American political institutions, processes, and behavior.

PSC 821. Urban Politics. 3 Credits.
Comparative analysis of the context, institutions, processes, and policies of urban political systems.

PSC 822. Urban Policy Problems. 3 Credits.
Analysis of public policy issues confronting urban governments; emphasis on the theoretical roots and empirical impact of past and present programs in such areas as housing, education, poverty, and crime.

PSC 823. Judicial Politics. 3 Credits.
Introduction to the literature of judicial process and behavior studies; specific focus on selected topics. Emphasis on the major subfields of law, courts, and judicial process.

PSC 824. Law, Politics, and Society. 3 Credits.
Role of the judiciary in policy formulation; emphasis on the U.S. Supreme Court and civil liberties issues.

PSC 825. American Presidency. 3 Credits.
Personalized and institutionalized aspects of the presidency, with particular emphasis on the politics of contemporary policymaking.

PSC 826. Politics and Organizations. 3 Credits.
Introduction to the core elements of political science and their political phenomena and the major insights that have come from this work. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 827. Politics and Public Policy. 3 Credits.
Theoretical approaches to understanding organizational behavior and change; applications to specific political problems in U.S., international, and comparative politics.

PSC 828. Selected Topics in American Politics. 3 Credits.
In-depth coverage of significant theoretical and empirical issues in American politics, including such topics as political behavior, electoral politics, and race and politics. For advanced students. (Offered as the demand warrants)

PSC 831. Advanced Theories of Comparative Politics. 3 Credits.
Major concepts, methods, and theoretical debates in comparative politics, including cultural, rational, and institutional approaches.
PSC 8333. Political Violence. 3 Credits.
Theoretical and methodological approaches to studying violence, such as civil wars, ethnic riots, suicide bombings, and genocide, and the impact of violence on societies and people. Restricted to graduate students in the political science program.

PSC 8334. Democracy and Democratization in Comparative Perspective. 3 Credits.
Theoretical approaches to processes of democratization. Evaluation of cultural, economic, institutional, and international-actor approaches. Case analysis of recently transitioned or transitioning nations. Primarily for PhD students in political science.

PSC 8337. Theories of Political Development. 3 Credits.
Examination of how and why political systems develop the way they do. Why do some countries develop into democracies, while others become authoritarian? How do class conflict, the nature of the elite, and the political culture affect the development of political institutions?

PSC 8338. Nationalism and Nation-Building. 3 Credits.
Nationalism, ethnic conflict, and nation-building; the effects of nationalism on political identities, state formation, patterns of political violence, definitions of citizenship, migration policies, and voting behavior.

PSC 8340. Authoritarianism and Democratization. 3 Credits.
The political science scholarship on authoritarian regimes, including their institutional features, strategies for survival, and prospects for change.

PSC 8341. Theories of Ethnic Politics. 3 Credits.
Focus on cutting-edge interdisciplinary theories of ethnicity’s role in politics. Ethnicity’s relationship to democracy, economy, psychology, conflict, and solutions. Cases worldwide.

PSC 8338. Selected Topics in Comparative Politics. 3 Credits.
In-depth coverage of significant theoretical and empirical issues in comparative politics, including such topics as democratization, the politics of development, the role of the state in advanced industrial societies, gender and ethnicity, and the politics of nationalism. (Offered as the demand warrants)

PSC 8441. Advanced Theories of International Politics. 3 Credits.
Perspectives examined range from realism to critical theory and focus upon a variety of explanatory variables.

PSC 8450. Topics in International Relations. 3 Credits.

PSC 8452. Theories of International Security. 3 Credits.
Focus on conflict in different systems and scenarios and on causes and consequences of different strategies. The role of ethics in international security.

PSC 8453. Advanced Theories of Political Economy. 3 Credits.
Major theories of political economy, from classical perspectives on problems of international cooperation to modern treatments of trade, finance, investment, and regulation.

PSC 8454. Domestic Politics and International Relations. 3 Credits.
Theoretical and empirical approaches to exploring the relationship between domestic politics and international relations. Restricted to PhD students in the political science program and MA students with permission of the instructor.

PSC 8460. Military Intervention. 3 Credits.
Theoretical and empirical approaches to the study of military interventions. The challenges of designing political science research on a complex and policy-relevant topic like military intervention.

PSC 8461. Military Effectiveness. 3 Credits.
Theories of military effectiveness in conventional wars. Case studies of several conflicts and brief exploration of effectiveness in unconventional wars.

PSC 8462. Civil War. 3 Credits.
Theories of causes, conduct, and termination of civil wars. Consideration of violence against civilians, rebel recruitment, counterinsurgency, and civil war outcomes.

PSC 8489. Selected Topics in International Politics. 3 Credits.
In-depth coverage of significant theoretical and empirical issues in international politics, including such topics as comparative foreign policy, ethics and norms in international politics, the politics of military intervention, and theories of security in a post-Cold War environment. For advanced students. (Offered as the demand warrants)

PSC 8997. Advanced Reading. 1-3 Credits.
Advanced reading course. Restricted to doctoral candidates preparing for the general examination.

PSC 8998. Advanced Research. 1-12 Credits.
Review of literature; preparation of a dissertation proposal and a manuscript of publishable quality. Permission of the instructor and major advisor required prior to enrollment. May be repeated for credit. Restricted to doctoral candidates preparing for the general examination.

PSC 8999. Dissertation Research. 3-12 Credits.
May be repeated for credit. Restricted to doctoral candidates.
