MASTER OF SCIENCE IN THE FIELD OF INFORMATION SYSTEMS TECHNOLOGY

The master of science in the field of information systems technology (MSIST) degree program is designed for working professionals in information systems technology who are looking to make a career shift. Through dynamic, hands-on laboratory and classroom-based courses, students learn how to integrate information systems technology expertise and management skills to effectively implement business solutions. Students may complete the degree through full-time or part-time study.

There are daytime, evening, and weekend class options offered online and at GW’s Foggy Bottom Campus. A hybrid format is available, combining on-campus and online study options. A typical full-time student will complete degree requirements in 18 to 24 months. Part-time students typically complete the program in 24 to 36 months.

Visit the program website (http://business.gwu.edu/current-students-2/specialized-masters-programs/msist-degree-requirements/) for additional information.
