

MASTER OF ARTS IN EDUCATION AND HUMAN DEVELOPMENT IN THE FIELD OF EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP AND ADMINISTRATION

GW's Educational Leadership and Administration program has garnered national recognition and is designated as a program of distinction by the National Policy Board for Educational Administration (NPBEA). The program is nationally accredited by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). In addition, it is aligned with and embeds the National Educational Leadership Preparation (NELP) standards in all of its licensure courses and internship experiences.

The Educational Leadership and Administration master's program is a part-time program designed for working PreK-12 professionals. It serves educators in diverse school communities who are interested in PreK-12 school-based or central office leadership positions; PreK-12 school-based or central office supervisory positions; increased responsibility in PreK-12 teaching; and/or advanced levels of PreK-12 professional responsibility.

The master's degree licensure coursework and embedded internship opportunities prepare students to attain PreK-12 leadership positions in public and private schools, or similar organizations. The degree satisfies the credit, coursework, and field experiences required for administrative licensure in the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the partner states of the interstate compact agreement. Before enrolling, applicants should review their state regulations for administrative licensure or certification to ensure the acceptability of this program.
