UNIVERSITY HONORS PROGRAM

The mission of the University Honors Program (https://honorsprogram.gwu.edu/) is to bring together outstanding students of wide academic interests and challenge them through rigorous engagement in and contributions to a diverse community of scholars. Our distinctive curriculum promotes a broad liberal education that encourages students both to probe the most foundational questions of humanity and to apply their understanding to complex problems of the world today. Students enhance their course work with research and other experiential opportunities and work with our faculty and staff to achieve intellectual and personal development throughout their undergraduate years.

Components of the program include:

• Seminar-style classes with 15 to 20 students that provide an opportunity to probe a variety of evolving issues and complex questions.

• Students enroll in a series of unique courses, addressing questions and issues through cross-cultural and cross-disciplinary perspectives, drawing from the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences. In their senior year, students complete a senior thesis and participate in an Honors capstone experience both of which provide an opportunity to apply and reflect on what they have learned as undergraduates.

• A shared academic experience is enhanced by the small size of the program, approximately 500 students. All first-year Honors students live in an Honors Living Learning community on the Mount Vernon campus. Upper-level Honors students have the option of living in an Honors residential community on the Foggy Bottom campus.

• Programming includes off-campus activities with professors and staff including visits to local museums, day trips throughout the region, theater performances, and film screenings; discussions in the program’s Club Room; student-faculty dinners; and guest speakers.

• Small, discussion-driven Honors courses create a collaborative environment and strengthen relationships between students and faculty.

• Supplemental to other advising at GW, Honors advisors assist students with academic, career, and personal planning.

• Honors students have early registration during their second, third, and fourth semesters at GW.

• Achievement in the Honors program is indicated on the student’s transcript.

REQUIREMENTS

The University Honors Program (https://honorsprogram.gwu.edu/) serves approximately 500 selected students, or five percent of the undergraduate student body. Incoming students may apply to the Honors Program at the time they apply to the University. Current students who wish to apply to the University Honors Program must be in the second semester of their first year (rising sophomores). Admission is limited to approx. 15 exceptionally qualified applicants per year.

Students who join the Honors Program in spring of their freshman year take HONR 2016 Enlightenment East and West in place of the first year seminars.

Anytime in their second, third, and fourth years Honors students take:

Two Self and Society courses (HONR 2047/HONR 2047W). Topics may not be repeated.

and

Two Self and Society courses (HONR 2053/HONR 2053W). Topics may not be repeated.

• For students enrolled prior to Fall 2020, HONR 2048/HONR 2048W will satisfy the Self and Society requirements and HONR 2054/HONR 2054W will satisfy the Arts and Humanities requirements.

All Honors Program students participate in HONR 4199 Honors Capstone Experience and complete an Honors Senior Thesis (HONR 4198) or project through Honors or through their department. Some Honors courses meet certain general curriculum and elective requirements of the respective undergraduate schools.

In order to remain in good standing, Honors Program students must enroll in at least 12 academic credits each semester and earn at least a 3.0 GPA by the end of their first year. After their first year, students must maintain a cumulative GPA that ensures it is mathematically possible to graduate with 3.0 or above. Successful participation in the program is recognized and recorded on a student’s official transcript.
