

MASTER OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES IN THE FIELD OF LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS

Program Director: C. BURGAT

To survive in Washington, DC's complex political environment, the legislative affairs professional must have a comprehensive understanding of how Congress operates, how decisions are made on and off Capitol Hill, how to influence those decisions, and how to accomplish specific objectives within the legislative process.

Developed in consultation with government relations experts and legislative specialists, this challenging program delivers the knowledge and skills you need to establish yourself as a sought after operative in the national policymaking arena. Learn how Congress and the White House develop public policy and examine the workings of Congress from the perspective of both scholars and practitioners. The master's degree in legislative affairs offers an 11-course program. Classes meet Monday through Thursday evenings on Capitol Hill at the Hall of the States. The program also may be completed online or in a hybrid format. The degree can be completed in less than two years. The curriculum covers the entire scope of the policymaking environment, from interest groups and PACs, to the media, to policy-specific deep dives into topics like cybersecurity and environmental policy.

Visit the program website (<http://gspm.gwu.edu/legislative-affairs/>) for additional information.
